BUTCHER

Family in the County of Lewis Appears to Be Very Large.

WESTON, W. Va., May 30.—The names of 112 Butchers appear on the list of rural mail carrier's route, No. 1. There are others, too, too young to receive mail. The Butcher settlement is a well populated community. Teddy Roosevelt would smile approvingly if he passed that way and saw how there is no race suicide over there. And that they are at least up to the average of our population in their reverence for law and order will appear from the court records of recent years. There are not many disturbances there, and when some slight deviation from rectitude's pathway is made known to the public, the facts are at least as likely to point to some interloper as the real offender as to place the trouble at the door of a representative of the family whose members once owned practically all those broad acres down in the settlement. They who live and labor in love and mutual devotion, who make the earth to yield its fruitage, who thrive upon its products and their own industry, who contribute to the development and betterment of a community—these are good citizens in any community.

AN OLD CANE

Is the One That Was Carried by Stricken G. A. R. Veteran.

MORGANTOWN, May 30.—The cane that was carried by Ellisha M. B. Darling, of Fairmont, who has overcome in the G. A. R. street parade and died the same evening, is 210 years old, and has been handed down from generation to generation in the Darling family. The cane is a historic one and is made from Irish thorn. The old relic was brought to this country by "Grandfather" Britton, who helped to build Fort Martin, near the state line just down the river. The cane will probably be handed down to Mr. Darling's children or turned over to the Grand Army of the Republic.

GLASS FACTORY

Will Likely Be Located and Operated at Lost Creek Shortly.

Among other important industries which are expected to locate at Lost Creek, is a glass factory. Justice A. D. Bassel is negotiating with a Pennsylvania company for the sale of a site, and it is believed that a deal will be consummated in the near future. Not less than six acres is desired by the company, which would indicate, if the factory is erected, it will be a very large one.

SUNDAY CLOSING

At the Weston Postoffice is Announced to Begin Next Sunday.

WESTON, W. Va., May 30.—In obedience to instructions from the postoffice department that Sunday mail service be minimized, and beginning Sunday, June 4, the carriers' windows will not be open. Carriers will no longer report for duty on Sunday. The general delivery window will continue to be opened for the usual time, after the distribution of noon mail, a sufficient length of time to accommodate the traveling public and those patrons of the office who call for urgent personal mail. Business men who desire their mail regularly on Sundays may rent boxes at the regular box rates, even though their mail is delivered on other days of the week. Any patron desiring an important personal communication delivered to him on Sunday may be accommodated upon payment of the prescribed 10-cent fee for special delivery service.

ENGINEER SAVES

Lives of a Number of Passengers on a Coal and Coke Train.

ELKINS, May 30.—Coal & Coke passenger train No. 2, due to arrive at 2:20 p. m., Sunday, narrowly averted a disastrous head-on collision two miles this side of Roaring Creek Junction. No. 2 was coming around a short curve when Engineer Tierney espied an extra freight on the track ahead. Shutting on his brakes he stopped his train within twenty yards of the standing train. The passengers were badly shaken up by the sudden stop, but fortunately no one was injured. Only Engineer Tierney's alertness and cool head saved the train, which was a crowded one, carrying many who had been to Charleston on business before the legislature. Misunderstanding of orders was the cause.

MORE RECRUITS.

The local recruiting station has three or four men ready for enlistment upon the arrival of Lieutenant C. E. Swartz here from Parkersburg tomorrow to give them final examination.

AMERICAN

It was also said that the defendants had a monopoly on the tin foil business, the Conley Foli Company, of which the American Tobacco Company held a majority of the stock, producing 75 per cent of the tin foil manufactured in the country. Both the American and the tin foil monopolies were said to have been obtained in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Another phase of the litigation concerned the foreign trade. The petition charged that the American Tobacco Company had entered into contracts with the Imperial Tobacco Company, the so-called "British Trust," whereby the latter should limit its activities to Great Britain except as to the purchase of a certain amount of leaf in America and the former should limit its business of the United States. It was alleged that the two "trusts" organized the British-American Tobacco Company to take over the export business of both and divide the world between them. These contracts were made in Great Britain.

The circuit court found that there existed a restraint of commerce, but said nothing about the charge of monopolizing. In its decree, the court dismissed the petition as to the Imperial Company and the British-American Company and from this feature of the decree the government appealed to the supreme court. It dismissed the petition as to the United Cigar Stores Company, and from this, too, the government appealed.

The circuit court decreed that the American Tobacco Company, the American Snuff Company, the American Cigar Company, the American Stogie Company and MacAndrews & Forbes Company were unlawful combinations and restrained them from engaging in interstate or foreign commerce. From this, the defendants appealed to the supreme court. So did the government. The government objected because the Conley Foli Company and the individual defendants, headed by James B. Duke, were not made parties to the conspiracy to restrain and because all were not held to be attempting to monopolize.

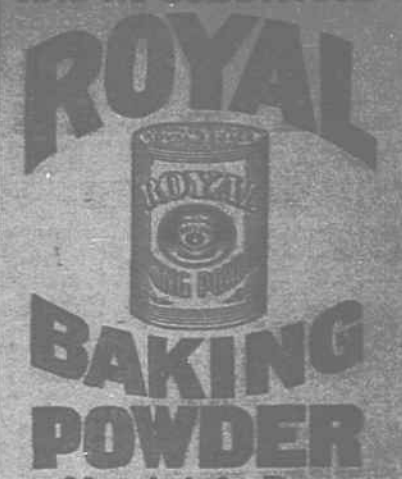

The circuit court decreed that the American Tobacco Company, the American Snuff Company, the American Cigar Company, the American Stogie Company, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Blackwell's Durham To-
